

Didn't Get Coronavirus Stimulus Funds—See How You Might Still Qualify!

If you didn't get one or both of 2020's COVID-19 federal recovery rebates (known as stimulus), you may still be able to get them by filing your 2020 taxes and claiming a Recovery Rebate Credit.

How much will you get?

- First Recovery Rebate: Up to $1,200 per adult plus $500 for each qualifying child.
- Second Recovery Rebate: Up to $600 per adult plus $600 for each qualifying child.

Are you eligible for the recovery rebate credit?

You may receive one or both rebate credits if all the following apply:

You meet income requirements based on your 2020 income.

1. You are not claimed as a dependent on someone else's 2020 taxes.
2. You are a U.S. citizen, a U.S. national, a lawful permanent resident, or meet the IRS substantial presence test.
3. You have a work-eligible social security number (SSN).

Non-citizens and students with DACA who can meet the IRS substantial presence test and have an SSN may be eligible.

How to get the recovery rebate credit if you think you're eligible:

You will need to file a 2020 tax return in order to claim the credit and receive recovery rebate funds. Details vary based on your circumstances:

- Students who received the first rebate but not the second:
The IRS website has more information about how to get the second rebate.
- Students who did not file 2019 taxes and did not receive any rebates:
You must file a 2020 tax return, even if you had no 2020 income or otherwise don't have to submit taxes.
- Students who were claimed on someone else's 2018 or 2019 taxes but will not be claimed on 2020 taxes:
If you will not be claimed on someone else's 2020 taxes, then you may be eligible for both recovery rebates. To find out, you must file a 2020 tax return, even if you had no 2020 income or otherwise don't have to submit taxes.
- Students who did not receive the first rebate because they are in "mixed status" households:
If you otherwise qualified for the first recovery rebate in 2020, but were married to someone who was not eligible due to their immigration status, you may now be eligible for BOTH rebates. To find out, you must file a 2020 tax return, even if you had no 2020 income or otherwise don't have to submit taxes.
- Students who did not receive the rebates because their 2019 income was too high:
Rebate eligibility was based on 2019 income. But, if you made less income in 2020 and your 2020 income meets the income requirements for the rebates, then you must file a 2020 tax return.
- Other students who did not receive the rebates
There may be other reasons you did not receive a rebate, such as a lost check or incorrect address. See the IRS Get My Payment FAQ for more information.
