RCLS 385: Reflection Paper

Reflection Paper: Provide a personal reflection on your own experience developing and organizing this special event. This is the only section of the final project that must be completed by each individual rather than as a group. Your reflection paper needs to be a minimum of 4 double-spaced pages (not including your title page or references). Please know that grammar matters!

Please use subheadings in your paper and include the following sections:

1. Introduction - create a road map for the entire paper. Tell the reader what you're going to talk about and in what order.
2. Highlight items you learned in developing the event.
3. What were the biggest challenges?
4. What you would do differently as an individual and as a group next time you plan an event/program?
5. What did the instructor do that was effective/ineffective in helping you reach your personal learning objectives for the course?
6. Application of your learning objectives to future career challenges/opportunities.
7. Conclusion - tie together your main points and give the read some take-away thoughts.
